UPDATES

H567 TLO: Ford Motor Company has begun recalling additional employees from TLO status. This process is expected to continue until all affected employees have returned to work and the night shift has been restored.

In response, the Union has filed a policy grievance to protect employees' contractual rights. Under the collective agreement, employees have the right to perform work within their designated classification and should not be used as supplemental staffing solely to cover absenteeism. The Union's grievance seeks to ensure that the Company's actions remain consistent with the terms of the contract and that employees' rights are fully respected.

New Hires: We currently have a group of new hires in orientation this week, and discussions are ongoing with the Company regarding the hiring of an additional 50 employees.

Some members may be wondering why more people are being hired? Over the past three years, our workforce has been reduced through retirements and normal attrition. As a result, there is a need to rebuild staffing levels to support current operations and prepare for the eventual return of the night shift. Bringing in and training new employees now helps ensure that we have a qualified workforce in place when additional production needs arise. The Union is actively involved in these discussions and will continue to keep members informed as more information becomes available.

Communication: The UAW Local 2000 website (Homepage - UAW Local 2000) is operational and offers text notifications that send updates straight to your phone. This will empower you to receive reliable information quickly and directly. Our goal is simple: clear, accurate, and timely communication for all members. Stay informed. Stay engaged. Stay united.
